LEADERSHIP

Gene McNaughton

Chief Growth Officer

Gene McNaughton serves as Chief Growth Officer at Alchatek, where he helps lead strategic growth initiatives across sales, training, and market development. He is known for his practical, systems-based approach to business development and for helping contractors build stronger, more scalable organizations.

At Alchatek, Gene plays a key role in training and education, leading sessions focused on generating leads, running effective site visits, delivering persuasive presentations, handling objections, and improving influence throughout the sales process. His work is centered on helping contractors communicate value more clearly, strengthen their sales approach, and convert opportunities into long-term growth.

With a background in sales leadership and business consulting, Gene brings a disciplined growth mindset to the company and its partners. His leadership supports Alchatek's commitment to pairing technical expertise with real-world business guidance that helps customers expand into new markets, improve performance, and build more valuable companies.
